

ABSTRACT

A roofers staple puller comprises a substantially flat bar with integrally formed U-shape prying foot provided with a plurality of fingers arranged for the removal of roofing staples and nails of varying geometry at one end of the longitudinal axis , a prying surface substantially notched to facilitate the removal of longer nails and spikes at the opposite end and an integral generally diamond shaped puller arranged for the removal of longer nails or spikes located there between.